$64,000 awarded for cycle safety instruction

by Susan Brown

Eastern Monday became the first Illinois school to be awarded a $64,000 grant to conduct motorcycle safety training courses.

The grant was awarded by the Illinois Department of Transportation and will provide for courses at Eastern and the surrounding area.

"This is the first step in the implementation of a state wide motorcycle training program aimed at reducing motorcycle accidents and fatalities in Illinois," Karsten J. Vieg, Governor Dan Walker's representative for highway safety, said Monday.

"Our plan includes the use of regional centers located at the major state universities that will in turn conduct courses in surrounding communities," he added.

Dan Bolin of Eastern's Health Department, project director for the motorcycle training course at Eastern, said classes have already been set up at the Charleston High School and will begin on Saturday. A schedule for Eastern will be put out soon.

"The program is open to all students, faculty members, and civil service personnel. Students must be 15 years of age with a permit, or have an operators license to be in the course," Bolin said. "Everything will be furnished in the course, the bike, helmet and everything is free of charge," he said.

"The funds for this program were made available through an appropriation from the General Assembly in the amount of $424,000," Vieg said. "Seventy-five per cent is comprised of federal funds and 30 per cent will be coming from the state," he added.

"The class will be taught in the same manner as a driver's ed class.

"It will be a 22 hour program comprised of 11 class hours and about 11 hours in actual training, though more time will probably be spent on the bike," he added.

"The class isn't offered as a credit course. Some area junior colleges are giving credit, but we don't feel it is the type of course that should be offered for credit," Bolin said.

"However, a student can get a 10 per cent reduction on their insurance if they pass the course," he said.

"We are expecting a big response at Eastern. Last summer they offered the course for the first time and 75 students completed it," he said. 2,000 motorcycle riders are expected to be trained during the 1977 fiscal year in Illinois," Vieg said.

"The program at Eastern will be an important part of the overall program in Illinois," Bolin said. "It not only will train beginning riders, but it will be training instructor as well."

Bolin said Eastern is also the coordinator of the East Central Illinois area.

"We are helping to work out programs at other schools and running all the programs," he said.

Teachers approved in the summer semester will be teaching the course. Additional centers are planned at Southern Illinois University, University of Illinois, Northern Illinois University and Chicago State University.

Two bids given for new Division Street bridge

by Karen Knupp

Two bids for the construction of the Division Street bridge are now available for public inspection, the City Council voted Monday.

The only bids offered for construction of the bridge that was closed 10 months ago by the City Council were by A.J. Walker of Mattoon for $129,964.20 and General Improvement of Elwin for $128,594.11.

Commissioners John Winnett and Bud Atkins expressed surprise at the bids.

"This started off being an $80,000 bridge," Winnett said. "What happened?"

Representatives from the bidding companies said that the removal of debris and salvage from the bridge site, sod work and the design of the slope had increased the cost.

Re-designing the plans for construction would probably decrease the cost about $50-60 a cubic yard, they added.

Winnett said he favored repair on the bridge instead of complete re-building.

"What you're going to do is injure the road if you build that bridge," Winnett said, adding that the sewers under Division Street would collapse if the street was used too much.

"We've only got a five-ton street and we're building a 20-ton bridge," he said.

Winnett said that if a heavy bridge was constructed, heavy trucks would begin to use Division Street and eventually destroy the road.

He favored repair for the bridge which would cost about $20,000, adding that the bridge did not need to be closed at all because it was in good condition.

"We made a mistake in closing that bridge in the first place - a big mistake," Winnett said.

The City Council closed the bridge at the advice of state inspectors and City Attorney Tony Sunderman who had cautioned them that the city would be liable if the bridge fell in.

If the bridge is torn down and re-built, the money will come from the motor fuel tax fund allotted to Charleston by the state.

Discussion about the bridge will be continued at the City Council meeting at 5 p.m. Tuesday in the Council chambers in City Hall.

In other business, the City Council okayed the advertising for bids for remodeling the heating system in Charleston's indoor swimming pool building.

Keiser up for presidency

by Lori Miller

One of the candidates for Eastern's vacant presidency resigned from the university in 1970, because of dissatisfaction with administrative policy as well as to accept a position at another school.

John Keiser, now vice president for academic affairs at Sangamon State University in Springfield, resigned along with another faculty member in 1970 because, his letter states, of internal administrative "rules and rituals" and inadequate educational opportunities for undergraduates.

Keiser said Monday he would be willing to answer any questions concerning his resignation when he appears for interviews on campus.

"I think the questions would be legitimate, but it might not be fair either to me or to the other candidates if my name were brought up as a political issue now," Keiser said.

Keiser said, however, that he left Eastern to take a post at Sangamon State. Eastern Search Committee Chairperson Terry Weidner said Monday the possibility of a controversy concerning Keiser had not been discussed by the committee since Keiser's name was submitted to the board.

"So far the committee has discussed in detail the background of only a few of the candidates and Keiser was not one of them," Weidner said.

Weidner said it was possible that questions could arise about Keiser's candidacy, but he said no formal questions have been submitted to the campus committee.

A letter of resignation from Keiser appeared in the July 1970 edition of the Eastern News, detailing his reasons for resigning.

Included in the letter was Keiser's concern about lack of acceptance of constructive criticism, students' difficulty at being accepted in graduate schools outside of Eastern, an understaffed and understocked library and the difficulty in program accreditation because of the lack of necessary faculty.

Faculty senate votes today

Officers will be elected at Tuesday's Faculty Senate meeting to be held at 2 p.m. in the Union addition Martinsville Room, Terry Weidner, senate chairperson, said Monday.

Offices to be filled are chairperson, vice-chairperson and secretary. These offices are presently held by Weidner, Joe Connelly and Mike Goodrich, respectively.

Weidner said there will also probably be a discussion about senate's role in recommending a replacement for Vice President of Academic Affairs Peter Moody, who announced his resignation last week.

In addition, there will be a general organization of the senate committees, Weidner said.

New members, elected in the spring, who will begin their term in the senate Tuesday are Herb Bartling, Lavern Hamand, Carol Helwig and Jack Rang.

Robert Shuff, who was also elected in the spring began his term in the summer, taking over for senator Louise Murry.

The other members leaving the senate are George Hackler, John North, Dalias Price and Weidner.

BOG meeting possibly delayed

by Lori Miller

Although plans are not final yet, the Oct. 20 Board of Governors (BOG) meeting may be cancelled, which could set back the naming of Eastern's new president to an undetermined date.

The meeting was scheduled to be held at Eastern.

Although a BOG spokesperson could not confirm the possibility, Acting President Martin Schaefer said Monday "plans had not been finalized" concerning the meeting, and that the status of the meeting will not be known until later this week or early next week.

Schaefer said he will probably find out definitely about the meeting at the BOG Council of Presidents meeting later this week.

A BOG spokesperson said Monday no plans have been made concerning the cancellation of the meeting, but Schaefer said the possibility was mentioned by a BOG staff member during the last meeting.

Schaefer said the reason for delaying the meeting may be conflicting schedule of BOG President Donald Walters, who may be out of town on a short term assignment.

Schaefer said no mention has been made of what provisions will be made for naming Eastern's new president in the event the meeting is cancelled.

Student BOG representative Micheal Marine said Monday a possibility existed that a special meeting could be called to name the president, but he added that such plans were highly tentative.

Marine said another meeting is scheduled for March at Eastern.

If the October meeting is canceled, it will be the second time an Eastern BOG meeting has been put off.

The first time was last fall, when the meeting was cancelled due to lack of agenda items.

Fraternity house blaze causes inspection

BALDWIN, Kan. AP -

A fraternity house fire that killed five young men near the Baker University campus Sunday will result in a stepped-up program of inspecting off-campus housing near colleges and universities in Kansas, the state fire marshal's office said Monday.

Floyd Dibbern, the fire marshal, said the Kappa Sigma fraternity house where the five were killed before dawn Sunday was not in compliance with the state code requiring two exits from the second and third floors. Four of the five victims were trapped on the top floor of the three-story building, Dibbern said.

The fire marshal said inspections of buildings such as the fraternity house have been left up to city fire departments but "some are not being inspected by local authorities." As a result of the Baker fire, he said, the state will take part in future inspections.

"We can close them up or make them comply with the law," he said. Dibbern said he is aware of some other sorority and fraternity houses in the state that do not meet the state requirements.

Four members of the fraternity and an alumnus were killed in the predawn blaze Sunday. Dead are Mark H. Morris, 22, of Lenexa, a 1976 Baker graduate; Stuart McCoy, 21, Overland Park; David C. Sleep, 21, Independence, Kan.; Steven Hoge, 21, Overland Park, the fraternity's president, and Theodore Bailey, 19, of Hillside, Ill.

The victims were badly burned and most of the identifications were made through dental records.

Four men jumped from windows to escape the fire and two others suffered minor burns.

Authorities initially believed the fire started in a first-floor television room, possibly as a result of careless smoking.

Two bits buys haircut; rest pays for singing

by Mickey Rendok

It costs 25 cents for the haircut and the rest for the singing.

"It should cost five dollars but I'm nice guy," Bennett said.

With today's unyielding price of inflation, the question of getting your money's worth is readily considered.

But for Lloyd Bennett, proprietor of the Tonsorial Emporium, the problem has been solved.

For $2.75 not only do you receive hair styling but a taste of "Shadowsky Opera" (pronounced shot-o-whiskey) besides.

"I am an opera singer from Italy," Bennett said with a smile.

"At least that's what I tell everybody," he confessed.

Bennett said he has been Tonsorial Artist in Charleston since 1948. His shop is located at 1503 Seventh St.

"In order to be a Tonsorial Artist you must sell yourself first and then your business," Bennett explained.

"And to receive a Tonsorial operator's license you must have been in the business 100 years," Bennett added.

In costs, rights

"Actually I have eight years to go since I'm only 92," Bennett said in a whisper.

Bennett said that Tonsorial Emporiums originated in England and were high class establishments.

"I came to Charleston a total stranger and made a lot of friends," Bennett said.

"A lot of my customers have been with me since I started," Bennett added.

Dorsey Crail, one such customer explained, "if the Crails didn't come to Bennett, he'd have to go on welfare."

"Aw, you take a man his age, when he's feeling good he shows it by singing," Crail explained.

"As far as I'm concerned he can leave the last part out," Crail added with a wink.

"And as for my voice, you're just jealous because you can't sing like that," he said.

"I enjoy meeting people and having fun," Bennett said.

"That's why I tell them I have a jet and a yacht, if they believe me that's their problem," Bennett said.

"Not too many believe me because they know better," Bennett said.

Bargaining affects students

by Norm Lewis

"Students are just not aware" how collective bargaining will affect them, Karen Anderson, Eastern's representative to the Association of Illinois Student Governments, said recently.

Since Eastern has never had collective bargaining, it is hard to say exactly what will happen, she said.

Based on other schools in Illinois and across the country that have collective bargaining, students can expect to pay more money and possibly lose some of their rights, Anderson said.

Although direct increases in salary for each faculty member due to collective bargaining is unlikely, student cost will probably raise in other ways.

Two of the issues which faculty will be able to negotiate on when collective bargaining takes effect, classroom size and teaching loads, could result in increased costs to students, Anderson said.

Although Eastern is at its highest enrollment level in its history, not enough faculty are being hired to handle the increase and consequently the student-teacher ratio is increased.

If the faculty decide on a ratio that is under the current level, additional faculty would have to be hired to reach the desired ratio, Anderson said.

The same thing would happen if faculty were teaching more hours than their contract would call for she added.

Under collective bargaining faculty are also able to negotiate their own tenure.

If enrollment drops off, as it is projected to do by 1980 and if the same number of teachers are working at that time as they are now, as could well be the case since most faculty will be on tenure students would be forced to pay more, Anderson said.

Students also face a possible reduction in student rights particularly in being able to send a representative to the bargaining table, she explained.

Alan Shark of the Institute of Collective Bargaining did some research on the effects of bargaining on students.

Shark noted that only 40 of the 145 contracts he studied even mentioned student rights, and most of those but once.

"It is significant to note that no student representative was present at the bargaining table during negotiations for the 145 contracts studied," Shark said.

Under the Board of Governors regulations that govern collective bargaining, a student will be allowed to sit at the negotiations and give opinions, but will be unable to vote.

However, all of those regulations are subject to negotiation once the bargaining agent is elected, including any provision for student representation, Anderson said.

She said she is planning forums to inform students on the consequences that collective bargaining could have on them.

Presidential assistants: Will they be worth it?

Student Body President Mick Chizmar is creating more questions than he hopes to answer by adding two assistants to his staff.

During the summer Chizmar created two executive staff positions to aid him and the Student Senate in gathering research on topics of interest to student government.

Noting that there is a lack of background information necessary to make intelligent decisions on important issues such as collective bargaining, Chizmar said he added two assistants to fill that need.

Craig Courter was named to handle special projects while Karen Anderson will concern herself with external affairs.

Certainly there is no question as to their experience.

Both are ex-senators and Anderson is currently Eastern's representative to and vice-chairperson of the Association of Illinois Student Governments.

The fact that Chizmar is paying these people out of his own salary has no bearing in the matter, contrary to what the senate seemed to feel last week.

There is no more reason for Chizmar to explain what he does with his salary than there is for Martin Schaefer to reveal what he does with his.

While this internship is a golden opportunity for him, not every student has been given a mandate by his peers to be their leader as Chizmar has.

If he knew he was going to have trouble carrying out his presidential responsibilities, why didn't he step down and allow executive vice president Randy Kob to take over, as he did this summer?

Instead, he has chosen to use three assistants to ## eastern news Editorial

carry on for him.

While we can't fault them for their experience in such matters, two of them — Courter and Scaggs — were defeated in elections held last May.

It is clear the students don't want them handling their affairs.

Additionally, all three are familiar faces in student government. Perhaps the best thing for that organization is to get some new perspectives and new ideas from some different people.

Chizmar should seriously evaluate his decision to divide his responsibilities among three assistants.

We feel, too, that the idea for which these people were hired is a good one.

Northern Illinois University, a school of less than two and one-half times the size of Eastern, reportedly has a staff of six people each earning more than $2,000 a year gathering research for student government.

However, the problem lies not with the assistants as such, but rather with Chizmar himself.

When he ran for re-election last winter he promised the students that he would be on campus this past summer — a promise he did not keep.

Furthermore, he will not be on campus as much this year because of an internship with the Illinois Democratic headquarters in Urbana.

Although he has been on campus almost every day these past two weeks, it is not hard to imagine that Chizmar will be spending less and less time here as November rolls around and the campaigning becomes more intense.

It is apparent, then, that Chizmar is using his two assistants, along with assistant to the president Bill Scaggs to shoulder his work load for him.

They could serve the student body well through their assigned duties as researchers and surrogates, and we sincerely hope they do.

On the other hand, they may cause more confusion within the student government framework by usurping power belonging to others — among them Chizmar himself — for more trouble than they are worth.

The value of the decision will only be told with time.

editorial policy

The editorial opinions expressed on the Eastern News opinion page are decided upon by a majority of the Eastern News Editorial Board, which is composed of six staff editors, the managing editor, news editor, ad manager and editor in chief. They do not necessarily reflect the views of Eastern's administration or academic departments. Columns, denoted with the author's name, reflect the author's individual opinions. In general, the News will strive to provide both a voice and a forum for the diverse opinions of a university campus.

Eastern: the wet-head, Eastern: the dry look

Now that Charleston may be destined to become the Sahara of central Illinois because of its dwindling water supply, and the housing office planning ways for the university to conserve water, I have formulated a list of my own more practical ideas.

For instance, one can always shower with a friend. However, this may not prove to be as water saving as it sounds, depending upon the friend you choose to shower with.

Of course one could always bathe in the campus pond but preferably with a perfumed soap.

Thinking ahead, when Greek tug is held during Greek Week, the losing Greeks can soap up in the pond while they're at it.

Students can dispense with washing their clothes and resort to dry cleaning or they can wear their jeans until they can walk away without the help of the wearer.

Sandy Pietrzak

Everyone could wash their hair the European style—every two weeks. Or better yet, shave it off.

Getting into the practical but equally tasteless conservation efforts, contact lense wearers could spit on them instead of rinsing them, and women could always boycott the mens urinals.

The food services can do their part by rationing out a teaspoon a piece of dry Kool-Aid and tea mix to thirsty students instead of having it ready mixed.

Turning the greenhouse into a desert terrarium so plants won't need to be watered is another suggestion.

Along with that, one could grow his own cactus with the purpose of breaking it open in case the situation gets desperate.

The intercollegiate sports can also help. The swim team could always join track and the canoe squad, well, Eastern could always drop it and then have reinstated after the crisis is over.

Charleston's situation is a little difficult to grasp when all throughout the winter months, the monsoon-like weather practically submerges the city, not to mention the small wading pools it creates around campus.

Dorm residents could shower by floors according to schedules set up by dorm counselors, with first floor on Monday, second on Tuesday, etc.

Also, instead of the old standby brick-in-the-toilet technique, you might try dropping a cement block down the toilets to block the flow of water.

And, of course, the annual (or weekly) water fight are definitely out.

And aside from growing your own rain clouds, students could help conserve water by reaching for beer rather than the precious substance when their thirsty feeling comes over them.

After all, Ike's is only across the street and during dry spell, a little watering hole is always a welcome sight.

And maybe Ike's could always be renamed "The Oasis".

letters policy

The Eastern News encourages letters to the editor so that we may provide a daily forum of opinion on campus. Letters should be typed (double-space) and must carry the author's signature, address and phone number for verification purposes. Authors' names will be withheld upon request. Letters are subject to editing for length and libelous material and will be published as space permits.

Fund decision delayed—Galovich

by Norm Lewis

The Apportionment Board (AB) will have to wait until the ten-day enrollment figures are announced to decide what it will do about the projected decrease in funds, Financial Vice President Jean Galovich said Monday.

Last spring the AB allocated money to the various organizations funded through student activity fees on the basis of projected enrollment figures for this fall, which appear to be about 10 per cent high.

If the estimates are correct, there will be a 10 per cent decrease in the money available for the student organizations.

However, Galovich said the AB would have to wait for the official enrollment count to determine how much they would have for this fall, and where cuts, if needed, will be made.

An audit is also going to be done on the reserve accounts to see if some other funds will become available, she said.

A new salary system for the Eastern News, Warbler, Vehicle, student government and campus radio station WELH was approved by the AB and the senate this summer she said, and is awaiting approval by the administration.

Based on recommendations by former president Gilbert C. Fite, the News, Warbler and Vehicle will receive a 10 per cent cut in salaries from last year.

The officers of WELH and student government were placed on different levels of pay according to position, Galovich said.

One of her goals for the semester is to update the AB by-laws, which "need revision to keep them current" she said.

A senior political science major from Lisle, Galovich said most of her job is "handling problems as they come."

She has also been elected to the senate for two semesters and last year served as executive vice president.

Galovich said she hopes to work for the government after she gets her masters in public administration.

Dystrophy marathon set for Labor Day weekend

Eastern Against Dystrophy has added two new events to the "Labor Day of Love" schedule including a whiskey barrel run and a swimming pool marathon.

A whiskey barrel is scheduled to be pulled by a cross country team from Danville a total distance of 71 miles from Danville to Charleston.

The barrel run will leave the Mary Miller gymnasium at Danville Junior College, the site of a previous basketball marathon, at 3:30 p.m. The run will end at 3 p.m. Saturday on the Eastern O'Brien stadium track in front of a home game crowd as Eastern takes on Cameron State.

The Brittany Plaza apartments, in conjunction with Eastern, have donated their swimming pool to be used on the Labor Day weekend for the fight against Muscular Dystrophy.

The swimming marathon, manned by Eastern students and Brittany residents, will start at 12:30 p.m. The marathon will continue until 5:30 p.m. on Labor Day, concluding 77 hours of continuous swimming. Anyone interested in participating or contributing should call 345-6111.

Attendance for Sunday's UB film hits 1,500; revenue exceeds $500

by Gary Shrader

When the University Board (UB) movie, "Everything You Always Wanted to Know About Sex," was shown Sunday, so many wanted to see it that another viewing time was opened.

More than 1,500 were in attendance at the three viewings of the Woody Allen flick, which was shown in the Grand Ballroom.

Although the revenue brought in from the movie was not known by press time, $500 had been collected following the first two showings.

The film, scheduled to be shown at 2 and 7 p.m. Sunday, was shown again at 9 p.m.

When the same film was shown last year it also drew capacity crowds.

It was the second UB film to be shown this semester.

The first movie, "The Graduate," also received a large following from Eastern students, Pam Plante, UB movie coordinator, said Monday.

She said she was pleased with the popularity of the movie, saying that everyone had a "riot."

Plante said she has "a good feeling" about the quality and popularity of the remaining UB films to be shown this year.

Bowling alleys remodeled; ready for use

by Nick Battaglia

Why complain about boredom when the Student Union bowling alleys have just been remodelled and are ready for play?

Remodelling was done on the alleys during the break between the summer and fall semesters, bowling alley manager Harold Gray said Monday.

The work consisted of the installation of new ball checks.

Gray said the ball checks are American Machine and Foundry's (AMF) newest model, the Surpic, and that he and the bowling population on campus are more than pleased with the operation of the new equipment.

The Union Bowling Alleys are open between noon and 11 p.m. Monday through Thursday and between noon and 11:45 p.m. Fridays and Saturdays.

The recreation area, which is equipped with pool tables, has corresponding hours.

Cost to the student with validated ID is 55 cents per lane for bowling with a 15 cent shoe rental.

The next time someone complains about not having anything to do, suggest the Student Union Bowling Alleys.

Parents weekend tickets still available

by Marcel Bright

Any student whose parents have not received notification of Parents-Weekend slated for Oct. 2 can still purchase tickets at the Union Ticket Office.

13,000 brochures with ticket information were printed and mailed in early August, Anita Craig, Assistant Director of Programs and Services, said Monday.

Some students may have returned to school before their parents received the brochure because the brochures were mailed bulk rate and this can take up to 14 days to be delivered, she said.

Parents Weekend will begin with the convocation at 10 a.m. Oct. 2 in the main concourse of the Lantz Building.

Following the convocation the University Board will host a coffee hour where parents will register and receive general information.

At 2 p.m. Eastern will host Central Missouri in a football game at O'Brien Stadium. Parents can purchase reserved tickets for $2.50 or pay the general admission fee for the same price.

The Parents Club will host a special reception for Eastern parents and their students in the Rathskeller at 4 p.m. to provide them with an opportunity to meet the Parent's Club board and Eastern Faculty Members.

A candlelight buffet will be served at 5 p.m. in the Union Ballroom. Tickets are $4.25 each.

Actor and singer Burl Ives, a former Eastern student, will give a concert in the Lantz Building to end the day's events.

Tickets for any or all of the Parents Weekend Activities may be purchased by picking up a brochure at the Union Ticket Office, attaching a check or money order for the appropriate amount, with a self-addressed stamped envelope, and turning it in at the same office.

MacLeod stresses fund raising importance

by Dave Shanks

Outside funding in an athletic program is essential in making a team successful, John MacLeod told listeners at the kick-off dinner of the Century Club Monday night.

MacLeod, head coach of the Phoenix Suns basketball team, said "We've got some coaches here (from Eastern) who are on the right track who need the winning edge, but we've got to have your help."

MacLeod, a personal friend of Athletic Director Mike Mullally told the gathering of about 100 people that a productive athletic program, such as at the University of Oklahoma where he was head basketball coach, can be achieved only with the help of supporters.

The featured speaker at the opening dinner of the organization providing outside funds for the athletic program told of the fund-raising drive conducted primarily by Mullally when he was at Oklahoma which resulted in the construction of a new $2.2 million basketball arena.

"For a major university, it was kind of a sad site," MacLeod said of the old arena, but said the new Noble Arena "is excellent, it's beautiful."

MacLeod, who guided the Suns to their second place finish in the NBA in one of the most exciting playoff series ever, said the team accomplished the feat because it set goals.

After the team dropped 18 of 22 games, MacLeod said he asked each of his players, "What are you here for?" who responded, "I'm here to win."

The coach, entering his fourth year at the Phoenix helm, then the team set their goals. Realizing they could not beat the league-leading Golden State Warriors, the team set a goal of finishing second in the league and missed reaching that standard by only one-half a game.

Then the team set goals to first beat Seattle and Golden State in playoffs, which they did then naturally set a goal to beat the Boston Celtics, the only team left.

"We tried like hell and couldn't do it," he said, but got as far as they did because of achievement of their goals.

Of Eastern, which he had an opportunity to see this afternoon, MacLeod said, "this is a great little place. People seem sincere, they seem genuine. There seems to be a lot of enthusiasm here."

But for success to continue at Eastern, "We've got to have your help," he said.

Men's tennis to begin rebuilding

by Pat Hodge

After a year's absence, Eastern's varsity tennis program will return this spring.

Back from the squad from two years ago will be four seniors; Don Harvey, the number two singles player; Mike Evans, the number three man; Doug Oberle, the number six player, and John Anderson, the number eight man.

Coach "Dutch" Gossett said Monday that he expects several good walk-ons to round out the squad.

"Our big job is rescheduling" Gossett said, pointing out if Eastern is seeking to reschedule some of the teams they have played in the past, and is also trying to get some new teams on the schedule.

When asked how the year's layoff will affect some of the veterans, Gossett said, "They lost a good year of experience, but I think they'll be ready to go when the spring comes around."

Gossett also added that "the main thing is that we got the tennis program back in."

Gossett said there will be a meeting for all prospective tennis players at 4:30 p.m., Sept. 7 in the Varsity Room of the Lantz building.

Before attending the meeting a physical is required from the health service, Gossett said, adding that the results of the physical must be presented at the meeting.

by R.B. Fallstrom

You may not have noticed it, but back in the middle of the summer, Eastern had probably its most impressive sports showing of the 1975-76 school year.

In what coach Neil Moore called "a fitting climax to a great season," Eastern's track team nabbed a second-place finish at the NCAA Division II championships in Slippery rock, Pa.

Eastern logged 39 points at the meet, finishing behind the University of California-Irvine's 56. The meet was held May 26-29.

"That, to me, was a surprising effort," Moore commented. "Going into the second day of finals, we weren't doing too well."

In the final day of competition, field events were held. Eastern responded, placing athletes in the scoring column in five events.

The previous day, freshman Eddie Hatch had picked up the only victory, a 46.8 second performance in the 400 meters. Paco Morera also grabbed third place in the 1,500 meters.

The since-graduated Toni Ababio gave Eastern 12 points with third-place finishes in the long jump and triple jump, leading the second-day barrage.

Gerry Byrne upped his school record in the pole vault another notch, clearing 16 feet for another third. The record was attained in a "slight drizzle," Moore said.

Mike Miller set another school record with a 173-foot-5 inch heave in the discus. It was his personal best by about 10 feet, Moore said.

A sixth by Phil Stivers in the javelin closed out the Eastern scoring in the field events.

"He had a fantastic series of throws when we really needed it," Moore said. All six of Miller's throws were between 168 and 173 feet, the coach added.

Eastern competed without distance ace Mike Larson and javelin record-holder Andy Womack.

Larson, who missed almost the entire outdoor schedule with a foot injury, has been red-shirted and will compete again this spring.

Womack was sidelined because of illness.

Moore doesn't anticipate an end to this success. Ababio is the only major loss, and several outstanding recruits will shore up the 1976 squad.

"We're going to be contenders, if we stay healthy," Moore promised.

Injuries plague running back crew; four receivers return

by Chauncey Blaisdell

Most coaches are enthused about their ballplayers a week before opening day and Eastern's backfield and end coach Ed Helies is certainly no exception.

"If we can keep everybody healthy we could have the best group of backs we've ever had," Helies said Monday.

The word "if" however is a very important one to watch in that statement because at the present time it would be difficult to go down the Panther roster and find a completely healthy running back.

Standout fullback Mark Stettner, returning starter Tommy Meeks, halfbacks Gerald Bell and Brian Leonard

Officiating meeting to be held

All men interested in officiating men's intramural flag football and soccer should attend a meeting at 6 p.m. Thursday in the Varsity Room of Lantz.

Person's wanting additional information should contact the Intramural Office in Lantz, Room 148 from 3-4 p.m.

and fullback Larry Smith are presently injured or just coming off injuries.

Helies has four returning lettermen and five other backs with which to work this year.

Stettner, Meeks, Bell and Lorne Hubick return from last season's 3-5-2 Panther outfit with sophomores Jeff Forster and Brian Leonard and freshmen Mark Campana, Chris Cobb, Marcus Potts filling out the roster.

"The kids who I'm planning on playing a lot are doing a hell of a job," Helies said adding, "of course we're making some mental mistakes but the intensity is very good."

Helies went on to say the leader in enthusiasm and intensity is two year letter winner and leading ground gainer the past two seasons, Mark Stettner.

"He's doing everything you want him to do," Helies said adding, "His enthusiasm is contagious, the younger kids are looking up to him."

The second year assistant coach is also impressed with his crop of freshmen.

"Cobb has done a hell of a job for us. He's speedy and has good strength," Helies explained.

He went on to say that freshmen Campana and Potts are still learning the offense but will see a lot of action this upcoming season.

Helies also said that Smith has "a lot of ability but also has a bad knee so we don't know how long we can keep him healthy."

Hubick and Leonard were on last year's squad and figure in the plans of Helies.

"Hubick has earned three letters and is much improved from last year and Leonard has good speed and ability but he gets injured a lot," Helies explained.

Four lettermen are also returning to Helies from the receiving corps.

Senior Jimmy Young, returns to the flanker position, sophomores Martes Smith and Mark Francis are back at split end and junior Doug Hiatt returns at tight end.

Filling out the receiving roster are flanker Art Jackson who was switched from the tight end position this season split ends Terry Carpenter and Jim Warring and tight ends Jim Belton and Tony Scala who is making the switch from quarterback to tight end.

No definite starting lineup has been established as yet as Helies said the positions are very close.

Helies said Smith and Young will split the game at wide receiver with Young and Jackson doing the same at the flanker position.

"You could flip a coin to see who's starting, that's how close they are," Helies said. "They are all equal and we won't be hurting with either."

When asked if the receivers will be thrown to more this season than last, Helies responded, "They better be; they couldn't be thrown to much less!"

Helies also said this year's crop of receivers are not exceptionally fast but have decent quickness and good hands.
